NEW TURKISH STATE

Predict Reorganization of Government—Army Officers Flayed.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Complete reorganization of the Turkish government and the trial by court-marshal of Turkish army officers and officials responsible for Armenian outrages during the war are predicted in Paris advices received here yesterday.

The chamber of deputies was dissolved by proclamation the day before Christmas following a widespread public demand that all officials named by Enver Pasha should be removed from office. Critics of the government insisted that officials should resign since Enver Pasha, "their master, traitor to his country, had taken flight and was the object of pursuit."

In the proclamation by which the parliament was dissolved the minister outlined the history of the war and stated that Turkey had been led into the war through no necessity, but to content the ambition of high officials.

Paris representatives in Constantinople report that a special tribunal will be created by the government for the trial of functionaries alleged to have inspired the Armenian outrages. Turkish officials insist that much of the responsibility for the massacres rests with Marshal Liman von Sanders, formerly head of the German military mission to Germany who has escaped to his own country.

CRITICIZED GERMAN

President Poincare spent Christmas day in the Ardennes region (the last portion of French soil held by the Germans and wrested from them in the closing days of the war.

President Poincare during the visit to Mezieres, criticized severely the conduct of the Germans, who fired at women and children and set fire to the hospitals there, and declared that France would secure reparation for such crimes. eH was informed by the mayor that 400 houses were destroyed and numerous casualties caused by the German bombardment of the town a few hours before the armistice became effective.

Charles Ray, one of the most popular young screen stars in the country, will be seen in his latest Thomas H. Ince-Paramount picture play "String Beans," at the Richmond Theatre tonight.

"String Beans" deals with a country boy, who writes poetry and after he becomes a member of the staff of a newspaper, exposes a fake cannery scheme, in the course of which he wins fame and love. There is a charming blending of humor, dramatic thrills and heart appeal in the development of the plot.

There is a splendid love story and the various incidents are of the most interesting description.

The surrender of the German fleet of the Allies will also be shown in addition to the above attraction.

MARRIED—MISS EMMA LOUISE SMITH, this city, and MR. CHAS. REGIS COSTELLO, Pittsburgh, Pa., were married this noon at St. Mary's parsonage by Rev. L. F. Kelly.

EIGHTEEN INDICTED

Grand Jury in Circuit Court For Alexandria County Today Returned True Bills for Violations of Prohibition Law—Forty Cases This Term

A special grand jury in the circuit court for Alexandria county today returned true bills in the cases of eighteen persons charged with violating the provisions of the state prohibition law by bringing more liquor into the state than is allowed by law.

Afterward fourteen of those indicted entered pleas of guilty and in some instances some were sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and serve thirty days in jail. Others were fined $50.

Since this term of court a total of forty cases have been presented to the grand jury on the same charge. Most of these cases, however, have been disposed of.

All of the parties arrested were taken in custody by the state prohibition inspectors. Some were taken from automobiles and others from trains, both steam and electric.

The steadily increasing cost of liquor and its scarcity coupled with the fact that close watch it still being maintained by prohibition inspectors against bootleggers has resulted in a reduction in the traffic according to inspectors. However, the inspectors are still actively engaged in the work of running down bootleggers and the work will be continued until nation wide prohibition becomes effective July 1st.

LETTER FROM FRANCE

Private Edward B. Hughes, now in France with the A. E. F., has written the following letter to his mother, Mrs. Florence Hughes, Braddock Heights, Va.:

Dear Mother:

Your letter received of Septtmber 20. Of course, you know how glad I am to hear from home. How good news is from the dear old U. S. A.

Now I have lots to tell but little to write, as you know I am not much of a letter writer, but when I get home again I will have enough to fill a history, and some experiences.

Well, my first time over the top was the first week in August and thank God I am one of the lucky ones. I came out without a scratch. Like most of our company, things were very quiet, but they grew a little more exciting as time rolled on.

I guess you read of the drive which brought them out of the trenches, and now we are in open war. I, also, was in this big drive, it being a little more exciting. I have had shells bursting on every side and have done quite a bit of dodging and jumping into the nearest shellhole to me, but we advanced on sending Jerry a few of our eleven-pound pills.

Take it from me, our boys can send them. We had the hardest of the fighting to do, and our boys never fell back. They go on with their minds set, either win or die in the attempt and win we must.

We are in for a few days' rest and I must try and get rid of some of my pets, as we all have them. They are not issued to us, either.

Now, mother, you must not worry about me as I am getting along fine and feel fine, and am sure I will be home before long. Upon my arrival I will tell you how lucky I was to come back, as this is no fun. Only those who have the experience know what it is, although I would not miss being here. Will be glad when it is over, and pleased to ged back to our states, and I am sure we will be soon, as our boys are certainly giving it to the Huns. What it takes to do it they have.

they have. So be of good cheer and keep the home fires burning.

BERLIN WOMEN ARM

Sympathizers With Mutinous German Sailors Seize Arms in Defense of Royal Palace Against Civil Guard.

London, Dec. 27.—Wives and sweethearts of the mutinous German sailors have seized rifles and joined in defense of the royal palace against the civil guard, according to a dispatch filed in Berlin Wednesday night and received by the Daily Express today.

Street fighting continues.

Although the sailors have technically surrendered, they refused to leave the city and have announced they will continue to support Chancellor Ebert, who permits them to remain.

"The city is on the verge of anarchy, and fighting is expected to continue," the dispatch said.

Two conflicts are now under way in the city—the armed opposition of the sailors and their women to orders transferring the men to coastal cities, and the efforts of the rejuvenated Spartacides to overthrow the Ebert-Scheidemann government.

The Spartacides, under leadership of Karl Liebknecht, have announced their intention of forcing the present ministry to resign. The dispatch said they continue in possession of the Vorwaerts plant, from which they are issuing the "Red Vorwaerts." The building is defended by eighteen machine guns and an armored car.

The portion of the palace was still held by the sailors, while government troops held the remainder. It was believed that Ebert, fearing the sudden growth in power of the Spartacides, would halt the attack against the sailors and seek to enlist them on his side. Many of them already have openly declared their loyalty to the chancellor in view of his disposition to defer enforcement of the orders transferring them.

IN MEMORIAM

MAUPIN—In sad but loving remembrance of my dear baby, Water, who departed this life two months ago today.

I watched a sweet rose droop and die,
For want of rain and wondered why;
The rain drops, when at last they came,
Could not restore the bloom again.
You're like the rose, I'm like the rain
I have wanted you and called in vain.

By his lonesome mother.

IN MEMORIAM

BUTCHER—In sad but loving remembranee of our darling sister, MADELINE (LAYCOCK) BUTCHER, who died two months ago today, October 27th, 1913.

Loved her, yes, I love her
But angels loved her more,
And they have sweetly called her,
To yonder blissful shore.

The golden gates were open,
A gentle voice said, "Come,"
And with farewell unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

By her parents and sister.

BIG VAUDEVILLE ACT

Managers Rose and Siegel of the Grand Theater, always on the lookout for special attractions for their patrons, learning that the big feature Keith-time act of Williams and Murray were laying off for a few days preparatory to a jump to New Orleans, got busy and secured this act for Monday and Tuesday, at heavy expense, feeling sure that their patrons will appreciate an additional attraction of this character.

Williams and Murray have a clean comedy act, with songs, dances and instrumental music, entitled "The Girl from Huyler's." Mr. Williams is noted for his comedy and was formerly featured with such big musical comedy productions as "The Girls from Broadway," "The American Maids," "Midnight Frolics," "The Aviators," "Fascinating Widow," etc., while Miss Murray is one of America's real song birds, having a sweet voice of exceptional power and strength, and was one of the features of "The Follies." WILSON NOW IN LONDON

American President Receives Royal Welcome in British Capital—Two Millian People Fill the Streets.

London, Dec. 27.—No king has ever received such a magnificent ovation of welcome as greeted President Wilson yesterday from the British, whose shouts, rolling from Charing Cross to Buckingham Palace, made one mighty crescendo amid scenes of unprecedented enthusiasm.

"I hereby welcome you to England," said the king to the President.

"I greatly appreciate it, I assure you," replied Wilson.

While the band switched to the "Stars and Stripes Forever," the President and the king reviewed the king's guard in the train shed. The troops stood stiffly at attention. The king and President Wilson engaged in a lively conversation as they walked but the martial music drowned out their voices.

Two million Londoners jammed the streets in the area between the station and the palace. The roofs were black with spectators and there was not a telegraph pole nor a tree that was not occupied by daring youths trying to catch a glimpse of the distinguished guests.

As soon as Mr. Wilson appeared outside the Charring Cross station the waiting multitude burst into unending cheers, while the guns in the Tower of London bombed a royal salute, church bells tolled, bands played and airplanes whirled overhead.

King George heartily shook hands with President and Mrs. Wilson. A few minutes afterward Mr. Wilson, all smiles, grasped Premier Lloyd George's hand and both shook the other's vigorously.

An impressive incident during the procession to the palace occurred when, as the carriages were nearing Marlborough House there was a sudden shuffling in the sidewalk crowd. Elbowing their way to the curb came the Queen Dowager Alexandra, the Queen of Norway, Prince Olaf, and Princess Victoria. The crowd, recognizing them, fell back. The President leaned forward and waved a gracious greeting to the group in response to fluttering handkerchiefs. The king also saluted, while the queen dowager and the princess nodded heartily toward Mrs. Wilson.

At one time during the memorable parade the President came near being buried alive by some of his own countrymen. It was when the carriages passed the Berkeley Hotel, where the American military and naval missions had organized a tremendous demonstration. Each window of the balcony was packed with baskets of laurel. As the President's carriage passed a veritable avalanche showed upon him, while women threw handfuls of flowers. This was repeated when the President's wife and the queen passed by. Admiral Sims, Gen. Biddle, Winston Spencer Churchill and many American women were in the balcony.

The engine of the train that bore the President from Dover to Charing Cross had a tiny American flag at its masthead. The train rolled into the station on the dot of the scheduled time—2:30 p.m.

INGOMAR THEATRE

Alice Brady, Select Star, will appear at the Ingomar Theatre tonight in "The Knife," a picturalization of Eugene Walter's successful play of the same name. The photodrama was adapted by Charles Maigne and directed by Robert G. Vignola.

Miss Brady creates the role of Kate Tarleton, a young Southern girl whose memories of her old Mammy's tea-leaf prognostications lead her, while on a visit to New York, into a trap masked as a fortune teller's establishment—there she is drugged and kept a prisoner. Her fiance and guardian, Dr. Robert Manning, famous for his surgical researches, locates her with the aid of detectives, and rescues her. He avenges her treatment at the hands of her captors in a unique, but adequate fashion, and later returns to Kate, who has gone back home, where kindly hands have brought about her physical and mental recovery. In the sunny Southland, far from the treacherous quicksands of the metropolis, they settle down to a life of unalloyed happiness.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Judge Christian of the Corporation Court of Lynchburg has decided that soft drinks cannot be sold in Cafes under restaurant license. He bases his opinion upon the construction of the law by the State Supreme Court of Appeals. This decision is important, as it affects nearly every lunch house, cafe, etc., throughout the state, the proprieters of which suppose that under their restaurant license they can dispose of soft drinks.

In this connection it may be stated that the proprietors of some pool rooms are allowing devices to be operated which savor of gambling, and the authorities in the different cities are directing attention to the same and ordering their removal.

Certain slot machines and punch boards are being examined, and after sufficient notice should the use of such devices be continued those operating or permitting the same to be operated will be liable to a fine for allowing gambling on their premises.

Since the abolition of the saloon many pool rooms have been established in cities in Virginia, and while at first the devices used in such places were of an innocent nature, others have at times been introduced which may not bear too close inspection. Besides numbers of boys under eighteen years of age form a large percentage of the patrons of such resorts.

AN UNTAMED HYENA

In reviewing the testimony now being given before a Congressional committee as to Germany's intrigues in this country the News and Observer of Raleigh, N. C., states very clearly when it says:

"Germany as a nation is a barbarian. It is just as well that the fact is held prominently before us by German tactics, for in recognizing it is the only safety. Every move Germany makes is a warning and certainly the nations have had sufficient warning by this time that they will make no mistakes at the conference. Very much mercy extended there will be mercy extended the untamed hyena once he is caught and in shape to deal with. Mercy is a good thing, but first of all the business of the Allies is to make the world safe for democracy, not for German piracy."

WHY WE SHOULD GO TO BERLIN.

To the strains of "Deutschland Uber Allies," amid the plaudits of millions, with bands playing and flags waving, the Prussian Guards made their triumphant entry into Berlin, while flowers strewed their way, and then they heard Premier Ebert, supposed to represent a new and revolutionized form of government, welcome them home with the cheering words:

"No enemy overcame you. You protected the home land from invasion, sheltered your wives, children and parents from flames and slaughter and preserved the nation's workshops and fields from devastation. You can return with heads erect."

As the Manufacturer's Record says:

"This represents the spirit of Germany, a nation that glorified and deified war; that made rape and murder a crown of honor; a nation whose women gloried in the bestiality of its men; a nation whose ministers could rejoice in every crime commited because they thought it would add to Germany's power; a nation of ravishers, murderers and looters from whom there has never come one word of repentance and never a word of sympathy for the millions who have suffered and died because of its atorcities, now hails as conquering heroes and bedecked with flowers the fiends who committed these crimes, and sings a song of praise that these soldiers were "never overcome," but that they "protected Germany form invasion," sheltered the women of that land, and protected its fields and its factories from devastation.

"This typical expression of German thought illumines the whole situation; it shows what we repeatedly said, that until the American and Allied armies marched in triumph to Berlin the German people would never believe that their military power had been overwhelmingly defeated.

A COMPOSITE CHARACTER

In a life of Theodore Roosevelt, written especially for callow and unreflecting youth, we learn some surprising things about this loyal friend of Prof. William Howard Taft. Versatile and many-sided as he is, he still, it appears, has his limitations. As the author put it:

He is not a second Washington. He is not a second Lincoln. He is not a second Andrew Jackson. He is not a second anybody. He is Theodore Roosevelt himself—unique. He has something of the prophet Ezekiel in him and something of Natty Bumppo, something of Hildebrand, the valiant warrior, something of Cromwell, something of Charlemagne. He belongs to the heroic line.

As an exchange says, "To understand what Ezekiel and Natty and Bumppo mean, one must read the Bible and Cooper's novels.

But these are only a few of Mr. Roosevelt's accomplishments. He is also, we are told, "a level-headed winner, a loser who can grin." Clearly this must refer to the T. R. of the period before 1912. If he has been a cheerful loser since that date, with a glad hand and hearty congratulations to the winner and grinning over his own defeats, we have failed to notice this lovable trait. This stuff may go down with a lad of 12 or 13. The American voter knows the Colonel better.

HEALING WOUNDS OF WAR BIGGEST JOB OF RED CROSS

Broken Homes and Men Must Be Rebuilt—Re-education of Disabled Soldiers for Future Usefulness.

They are already rebuilding the broken homes of France. And they are already rebuilding the broken men. Over here we, too, are getting ready to devote to the same task the best of American skill and genius.

For each million of our men who enter action ten thousand will be so crippled as to need mechanical appliances, and they will have to be specially educated to use these so that the action of the missing limbs will be reduplicated as closely as possible.

If the Germans had had the entree to certain parts of France last fall they might have seen fields that they once destroyed yielding their best crop in years. And they might have seen some of these fields being reaped by men they thought they had done for.

They were men with varying degrees of legslessness and armlessness. Some ran (and repaired) tractor engines. Some, with both arms gone above the elbows, spaded the ground with the aid of a clever mechanism to which the spade was hooked. One man, who also had but the stump of each arm left, not only used a scythe but kept it sharp.

The Red Cross is running a five-hundred acre farm in France on which the maimed are taught the use of farm implements and the care of domestic animals, and is already laying its plans for great work for the maimed in this country. The end and aim of all its work will be to fit men to return to their own homes, and re-enter, as nearly as possible, their former place in life.

Sometimes these re-educated men take a far higher place in the community than they occupied before. For instance, men who have been automobile mechanicians, and whose legs were mutilated, have been re-educated in mechanical drafting. Bridge workmen have made similar advances. A Canadian mechanic who was maimed and afterward re-educated became a foreman at more than double his former pay. It was only their seeming misfortunes that opened for these men the opportunity to secure the education their talents merited.

The Red Cross sends out a strong warning against mistaken kindness toward the maimed men who are even now returning. If, it says, the public insists on making lions of these men, it will end by making them babies. If employers hunt through their plants for "snaps" for them, and give them jobs that mean little more than holding down stools and reminiscing about their daring deeds, then indeed we shall complete the work of destruction for them, maiming minds as well as bodies.

We, the American people, are going to be asked to spend more time, more money and energy keeping these men in the game than it would cost to merely support and amuse them and let it go at that. We must make them special harnesses, actually and metaphorically, and then have patience while they are getting adjusted to it. And we must see that they have their chances at suitable employments.

But these men are going to have something more than just marvelous appliances that will enable them to do almost any kind of work. These men's tremendous sacrifices won't be paid back by letting them in on life's work, but not its social game. So they are going to have Sunday arms and legs as well as the work-a-day wonders! A man with both hands gone may, with perfectly molded fingers, light his own cigarette or play cards. And a man with his face so ravaged that his best friend could not restrain a shudder may wear, over the disfigured part, a mask that is perfect and delicate, a work of art and science.

THE FIRST SQUARE MEAL

How Red Cross Has Fed Italian Prisoners.

Last spring the Red Cross workers at Berne were busy arranging to care for the American soldiers who were taken prisoners by the Germans, and now the new exchange agreement means that Italians from Austria on their way back to Italy are being cared for in hundreds. They are a pathetic lot, these "grand blesses"—the hopelessly wounded men—but they are always delighted with the prospect of going home, even though it may be going home to die. Nearly all of them are tubercular.

The method employed is this: The Italian Government sends a train into Austria through Switzerland to gather up the men released under the exchange agreement. The train crosses the Swiss border and at Buchs is met by delegations from the allied Red Cross organizations, and under the present plan the food is furnished by the American Red Cross. To many of these men this is the first square meal that they have had for years. Clothing is also furnished them. Each man of the 360 which each train carries is given cigarettes and a small American flag, and many who have been in America, some of whom have taken out their first papers, are overjoyed at the bit of red, white and blue and most demonstrative in their delight.

The representatives of the Red Cross remain on the train until it reaches Zurich, then return to Switzerland again.

It is the food which America has sent over which gives to these men their first meal—food which has been saved by eating smaller portions, and by going without.

Children of France.

Some one has said of the children of the devastated regions: "They are too sad, they must laugh or they cannot live." It is not enough to found hospitals and to provide food. They must be given wholesome recreation and their natural joy in life restored. This is what the American Red Cross is doing for the children of France.

ESTABLISH MODEL FARMS IN FRANCE

A model farm has been established by the American Red Cross at Courbet, for it has been found that farm work is one of the very best means of hastening the recovery of those men suffering from shell shock. One farm of 500 acres has been laid out in the department of Indre-et-Loire that is planned and is to be managed after the methods pursued in our own great farming regions of the West.

Since these farms will be worked almost entirely by the convalescent soldiers and those made unfit for active service, the expense of maintainance will be very little.

But the saving of human life will be enormous. And every farmer in this country who enrolls in the Christmas Red Cross Roll Call will be helping indirectly to carry on this reconstruction work among the mutilated soldiers in France.

The varied character of the supplies which the American Red Cross provides for American soldiers and sailors is shown in the following list of articles furnished in one recent month to our fighting men in Great Britain: 30,000 sweaters, 30,000 toothbrushes, 50,000 pairs of socks, 32,000 pounds of soap, 300,000 boxes of matches, 800 baseball outfits, 500 mouth organs, 144,000 packages of chewing gum, 5,000,000 cigarettes. For handling these supplies, the Red Cross has seven warehouses in England and six in Ireland. At the Irish stations there are stores of clothing, first aid outfits and other necessaries to provide supply for any emergency which may arise through the torpedoing of ships carrying American soldiers or sailors. If necessary, 6,000 shipwrecked Americans could be outfitted from head to foot at one time from these emergency depots. Advance arrangements have also been made for billeting, housing and feeding any number of men who might unexpectedly be landed at ports where there are no British military camps.

Cattle Buying For Swift & Company

Swift & Company buys more than 9000 head of cattle on an average, every market day.

Each one of them is "sized up" by experts.

Both the packer's buyer and the commission salesman must judge what amount of meat each animal will yield, and how fine it will be, the grading of the hide, and the quantity and quality of the fat.

Both must know market conditions for live stock and meat throughout the country. The buyer must know where the different qualities, weights, and kinds of cattle can be best marketed as beef. If the buyer pays more than the animal is worth, the packer loses money on it. If he offers less, another packer, or a shipper or feeder, gets it away from him.

If the seller accepts too little, the live-stock raiser gets less than he is entitled to. If he holds out for more than it is worth, he fails to make a sale.

A variation of a few cents in the price per hundred pounds is a matter of vital importance to the packer, because it means the difference between profit and loss.

R. C. COOKING "HITS" FRANCE JUST RIGHT

Expert Dietitians Devise Palatable Menus for Soldiers in Hospitals and Canteens.

France is much interested in American cooking, which is truly a gratifying compliment to a nation which prints its fashionable menus mostly in French. The two hundred and more American Red Cross canteens dotting both the French and American lines of communication have been a success with the Poilu as well as the Yank, and that well known French organization for the wounded, known as the Bien-Etre du Blesse, has opened a number of model kitchens in French hospitals, usually in charge of amateur dietitians, who consult a professional dietitian provided by the American Red Cross, who goes about among these hospitals and offers suggestions and advice.

Three hundred trained dietitians are now in service in hospitals, canteens or kitchens on Red Cross hospital trains in France. The American Expeditionary Force took with it a trained dietitian for each base hospital. These women are civilian employees of the Army, recruited through the Bureau of Dietitian Service of the American Red Cross.

Red Cross Model Farms.

For the double purpose of providing enough fresh milk and vegetables for sick soldiers in hospitals and well soldiers in canteens and providing healthful outdoor exercise for the patients well along in their convalescence the Red Cross has established a number of farms and dairies in connection with hospitals. Besides their great practical value they have given an enormous amount of entertainment to the men. The French government, more than interested, has loaned some thousands of cows, and altogether it is a scheme which appeals to everybody.

But it is not alone for the soldiers that the Red Cross does some of its thinking in terms of cooking and foodstuffs. The Bureau of Dietitian Service has helped to solve the food problem of civilian refugees.

The American Red Cross in France thinks in terms of huge figures, marvelous systems of transportation, tons of shipping space, and it also thinks in terms of the white of egg or orange juice for one single boy. That is why 22,000,000 people have affiliated themselves with the American Red Cross and why Christmas this year in the United States is marked by the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call.

MANY LIVES SAVED IN MINNESOTA FIRE

Heroic devotion to duty on the part of Red Cross workers in northeastern Minnesota saved hundreds of lives, soothed untold pain and fed, housed and comforted tens of thousands of homeless refugees in the awful forest fires which devastated a district of 160 square miles.

The Duluth Red Cross immediately formed a committee, opened the armory, the churches and the courthouse as a temporary refuge for the victims. The canteen service in Duluth and also in Superior, Wisconsin, served hot meals. The First Aid Department of the Nursing Service had physicians and nurses ready to meet all the incoming trains, and the Motor Corps scoured all the roads leading out of Duluth, bringing in hundreds of people who were exposed to extreme peril, and worked for 24 hours without pause for rest.

Why Your Line Is Sometimes Busy

When you lift your telephone receiver, you signal the operator, which brings the line into use. If you leave the receiver off the hook when through talking, the signal remains and the line continues in use.

No call can be made or received over a telephone line while the receiver is accidentally off the hook.

In the case of a few subscribers, this happens frequently. May we ask you, for the good of the service, to see that the receiver is replaced on the hook at the close of all conversations?

NEGRO RUNS AMUCK.

Kills Proprietor of Plantation Store at Fenton, Miss., and Wounds Several Others

Memphis, Tenn., Thursday Dec, 27 Henry Cocke was shot and killed in his plantation store at Fenton, Miss., late Tuesday by Dink Miller, a negro farm hand, who killed another negro and wounded two others, according to advices received here. The manager of Cocke's plantation rushed in and shot Miller to death.

Miller had been drinking and became engaged in a dispute with other negroes in the store, it was said, and after being ordered out by Mr. Cocke, armed himself with a rifle and fired through a window a number of times Mr. Cocke and a negro fell dead and two negroes were wounded. According to the reports, Miller entered the store, seized a knife annd slashed the face and body of the plantation owner. The plantation manager, whose name was not given, arrived at that time and killed Miller.

A Word with Women.

Valuable Advice for Alexandria Readers.

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless or relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow. Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Alexandria woman's convincing statement.

Mrs. Milton Moor, 123 Duke Street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a household medicine for kidney trouble in our family. I have taken them on several occasions for backache and other kidney disorders with every beneficial results. I am quite sure Doan's will help anybody who gives them a good trial. I know they are a medicine of merit."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Moor had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.
